DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. The drawings are objected to because the box (36) in Fig. 1 is not appropriately labeled. Further, in paragraph 41 of the specification, microcontroller is referenced by numeral (34) whereas in claim 15, it is referenced by numeral (36). Correction of this discrepancy is requested.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The preamble of claim 1 is confusing as to what the method claimed entails. Specifically, the claim specifies two methods, namely “a method for reducing interference signal influences on a high-frequency measurement device” and “a method for operating a high frequency position finder”. It is thus vague and indefinite which method is being claimed.

In claim 10, there is no antecedent for “locating objects (10)” in claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the PG-Publication to Clauss et al ('305) when taken in view of Miller et al ('073).

Art Unit: 3662

Per independent claims 1 and 12, the PG-Publication to Clauss et al discloses a method and system for locating objects (12). The system includes a transmitter (22), a receiver (24) an A/D converter (44) and a processing unit (46).

Per claim 12, Clauss et al does not disclose that the scan rate of the A/D converter is variably adjustable. Per claim 1, Clauss et al does not disclose that the scan rate of the A/D converter is varied as a function of an interference signal measurement. It is pointed out that (see para. 11-17) Clauss et al does disclose interference problems between transmitter and receiver (drift) can cause problems in accuracy of the measurements.

Miller et al teaches (see claims 3 and 5, for example) that it is known to overcome narrowband interference signal problems between transmitter and receivers by adjusting the scan rate of the A/D converter as a function of the interference signal.

In view of Miller et al, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the system and method of Clauss et al by including a step of adjusting the scan rate of the A/D converter (44) as a function of the interference signals so as to increase the accuracy of the measurements. Claims 1 and 12 are so rejected.

Dependent claims 2-11 and 13-15 are further provided by the combination of the above noted prior art.

Conclusion
